How to use this journal

Over the next 90 days, this journal is a gentle companion — a quiet, judgment-free space to notice how you're doing, and to take small steps forward. There is no wrong way to use it. Some days you'll write pages; other days a single line is more than enough.

Each day

Fill in a Daily Page — a quick mood check, a short prompt, and space for notes.

Each week

Pause at the Weekly Reflection to notice patterns and choose one simple next step.

When it's heavy

Turn to "Finding Your Way Forward" to untangle a worry into a small action.

Whenever you like

Color a page, write an affirmation, or revisit a memory. This is your space.

One small step at a time. You are not alone in this.

A GENTLE TOOL

Finding Your Way Forward

Faith invites us to take the next faithful step. When the way feels unclear, pause here and pray it through.

1. What feels heavy right now? (Name it plainly.)

2. What part of this is outside my control? (I can set it down.)

3. What is one small thing that IS within my control?

4. The single next step I can take today is...

5. Someone I could reach out to for help is...

6. A truth or hope I want to hold onto is...

BEFORE WE BEGIN

Where I am right now

In this season, my heart most needs...

The prayers I am carrying are...

The ways I have felt held and loved are...

The hope I am holding onto is...

HOLD ONTO THESE

Words for the hard days

Be still and know.

You are held by a love that never lets go.

Peace be with you today.

Hope does not disappoint.

You are fearfully and wonderfully made.

His mercies are new every morning.

You are never walking alone.

Cast your cares – you are cared for.

WEEK 1

Weekly reflection & a simple next step

What helped me this week?

What was hard — and what did I learn from it?

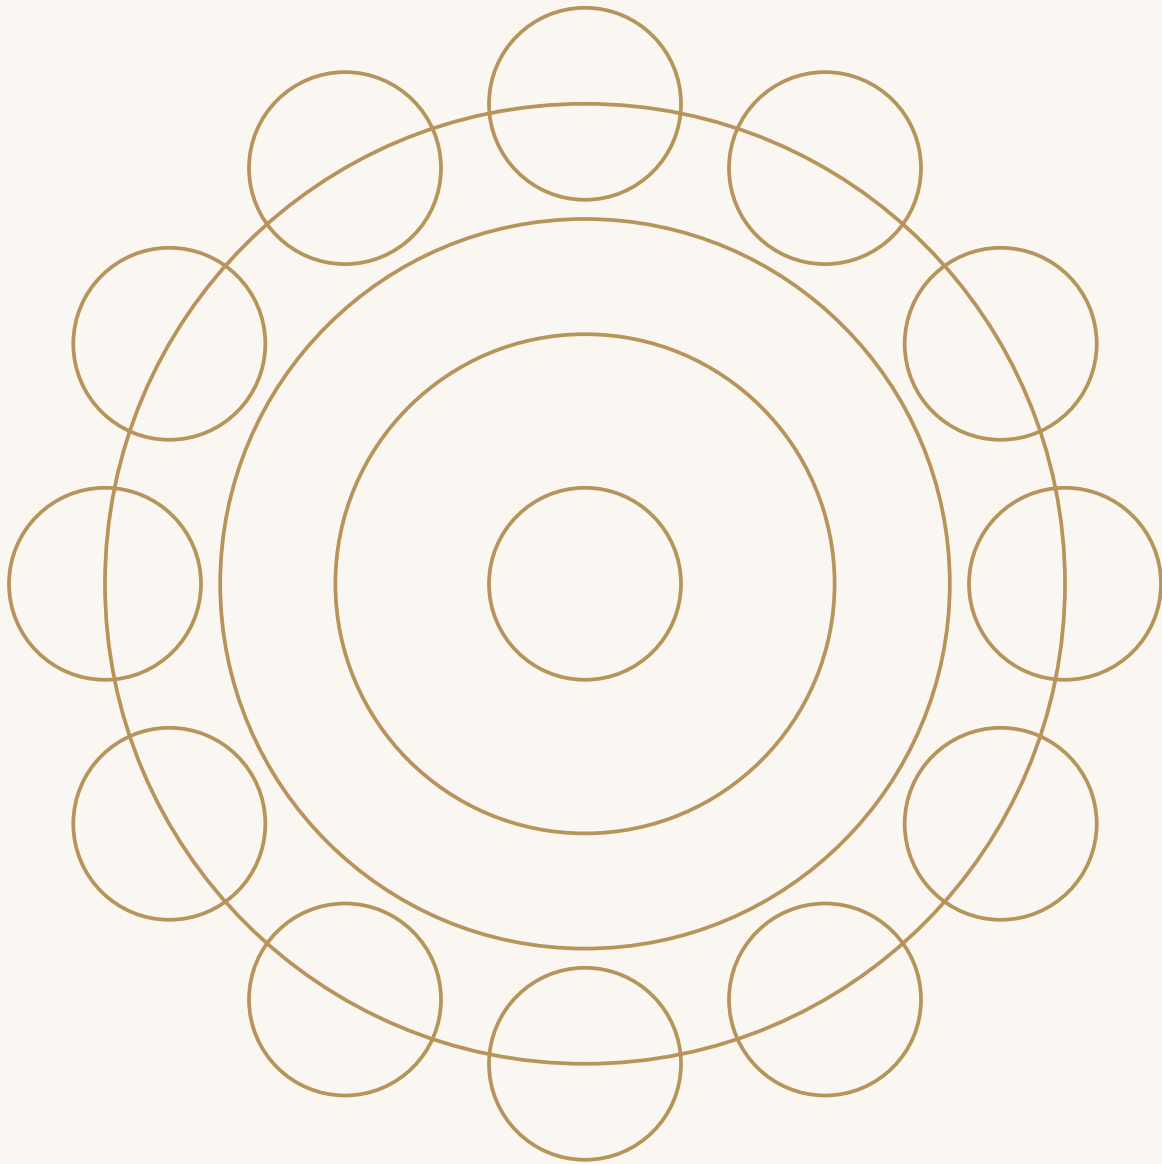

My one simple resolution for next week:

This week I made time to...

TAKE A BREATH

A quiet space to color

Let your mind rest while your hands create.

This is just a taste.
